We know that historical and structural inequities have placed some of our children in situations of greater stress, trauma, and violence. Thus, trauma-informed practice that heals kids exemplifies equitable practice. I want to highlight Resilient Southern Illinois, one partnership that is supporting this healing by addressing students' unique needs. The innovative collaboration includes the Poshard Foundation for Abused Children, Illinois Education Association and Partnership for Resilience, and more than 15 school districts in Southern Illinois. Educators and staff in participating schools are provided with ongoing training and resources as they build relationships to support students experiencing trauma and nurture students' social-emotional development.

Resilient Southern Illinois speaks to the necessity of being in deeper relationships to care for the whole child, whole school, and whole community. Children are not preordained to be defined by their trauma. Mitigating buffers and protective factors can help children heal and overcome any ACEs score. People read over trauma-informed practice and do not understand how fundamentally important it is. Trauma-informed classrooms are places where all children are getting their needs met. We firmly believe that trauma-informed practice benefits every single child and adult in the classroom and in the school.

Our alternative and safe schools are partnering with Resilient Southern Illinois, where our staff participates in training and the implementation of trauma informed practices. We are transforming our schools with the knowledge and best practices to meet the social emotional and educational needs to best support our students.

Brief summaries follow:

Construction Trades Class

Over the past few years the students have built and sold a Tiny House and built items for the Benton Library Garden, including a 12'x16' storage facility. During the school year of 2018-19, students, under direction of instructor Don Wilburn, have constructed walls and soffits for non-profit agency, walls and ceilings for offices at new Ewing Village Office, and a 12'x 20' storage facility, among other items. In its third year of existence, this year's Construction Trades class was the most successful and productive.

Computer Drafting Class

This class, often named Auto-CAD (Computer Assisted Drafting) is designed to address the need for pre-architecture courses in southern part of county. It is a dual-credit course, as students receive college credit at Rend Lake College. Students acquire skills in drafting to solve problems related to multi-view projection, eventually constructing original architectural drawings and competing in regional drafting competition at SIU.

Entrepreneurial (EDGE) Class

This entrepreneurial class acquaints students with knowledge and skills necessary to own and operate their own businesses. Topics of the class include economics, marketing principles and strategies, human relations and psychology, business and labor law, legal rights and responsibilities of business ownership, financial planning and accounting, and business communication. Students are required to plan and execute a business plan and operate a bona-fide business.
